CHAPTER II

Principles of Personal Data Protection

Article 6. Data controllers must adhere to the principles of legality, consent, notice, quality, purpose, fidelity, proportionality and accountability under the Law.

Article 7. Personal data must be collected and processed in a lawful manner in accordance with the provisions established by this Law and other applicable regulations.

Personal data must not be obtained through deceptive or fraudulent means.

In all processing of personal data, it is presumed that there is a reasonable expectation of privacy, understood as the trust any one person places in another for personal data provided to be treated pursuant to any agreement of the parties in the terms established by this Law.

Article 8. All processing of personal data will be subject to the consent of the data owner except as otherwise provided by this Law.

Consent will be express when such is communicated verbally, in writing, by electronic or optical means or via any other technology, or by unmistakable indications.

It will be understood that the data owner tacitly consents to the processing of his data when, once the privacy notice has been made available to him, he does not express objection.

Financial or asset data will require the express consent of the data owner, except as provided in Articles 10 and 37 of this Law.

Consent may be revoked at any time without retroactive effects being attributed thereto. For revocation of consent, the data controller must, in the privacy notice, establish the mechanisms and procedures for such action.

Article 9. In the case of sensitive personal data, the data controller must obtain express written consent from the data owner for processing, through said data owner's signature, electronic signature, or any authentication mechanism established for such a purpose.

Databases containing sensitive personal data may not be created without justification of their creation for purposes that are legitimate, concrete and consistent with the explicit objectives or activities pursued by the regulated party.

Article 10. Consent for processing of personal data will not be necessary where:

- I. Any Law so provides;
- II. The data is contained in publicly available sources;
- III. The personal data is subject to a prior dissociation procedure;
- IV. It has the purpose of fulfilling obligations under a legal relationship between the data owner and the data controller;
- V. There is an emergency situation that could potentially harm an individual in his person or property;
- VI. It is essential for medical attention, prevention, diagnosis, health care delivery, medical treatment or health services management, where the data owner is unable to give consent in the terms established by the General Health Law and other applicable laws, and said processing of data is carried out by a person subject to a duty of professional secrecy or an equivalent obligation, or
- VII. A resolution is issued by a competent authority.

Article 11. The data controller shall ensure that personal data contained in databases is relevant, correct and up-to-date for the purposes for which it has been collected.

When the personal data is no longer necessary for the fulfillment of the objectives set forth in the privacy notice and applicable law, it must be cancelled.

The controller of the database will be required to remove information relating to nonperformance of contractual obligations, after a period of seventy-two months counted from the calendar day on which said nonperformance arose.

Article 12. Processing of personal data must be limited to fulfillment of the purposes set out in the privacy notice. If the data controller intends to process data for another purpose which is not compatible or analogous to the purposes set out in the privacy notice, the data owner's consent must be obtained again.

Article 13. Processing of personal data will be done as necessary, appropriate and relevant with relation to the purposes set out in the privacy notice. In particular, for sensitive personal data, the data controller must make reasonable efforts to limit the processing period thereof to the minimum required.

Article 14. The data controller shall ensure compliance with the personal data protection principles established by this Law, and shall adopt all necessary measures for their application. The foregoing will apply even when this data has been processed by a third party at the request of the data controller. The data controller must take all necessary and sufficient action to ensure that the privacy notice given to the data owner is respected at all times by it or by any other parties with which it has any legal relationship.

Article 15. The data controller will have the obligation of providing data owners with information regarding what information is collected on them and why, through the privacy notice.

Article 16. The privacy notice must contain at least the following information:

- I. The identity and domicile of the data controller collecting the data;
- II. The purposes of the data processing;

- III. The options and means offered by the data controller to the data owners to limit the use or disclosure of data;
- IV. The means for exercising rights of access, rectification, cancellation or objection, in accordance with the provisions of this Law;
- V. Where appropriate, the data transfers to be made, and
- VI. The procedure and means by which the data controller will notify the data owners of changes to the privacy notice, in accordance with the provisions of this Law.

For sensitive personal data, the privacy notice must expressly state that it is dealing with this type of data.

Article 17. The privacy notice must be made available to data owners through print, digital, visual or audio formats or any other technology, as follows:

- I. Where personal data has been obtained personally from the data owner, the privacy notice must be provided at the time the data is collected, clearly and unequivocally, through the format by which collection is carried out, unless the notice has been provided prior;
- II. Where personal data are obtained directly from the data owner by any electronic, optical, audio or visual means, or through any other technology, the data controller must immediately provide the data owner with at least the information referred to in sections I and II of the preceding article, as well as provide the mechanisms for the data owner to obtain the full text of the privacy notice.

Article 18. Where data has not been obtained directly from the data owner, the data controller must notify him of the change in the privacy notice.

The provisions of the preceding paragraph are not applicable where processing is done for historical, statistical or scientific purposes.

Where it is impossible to provide the privacy notice to the data owner or where disproportionate effort is involved considering the number of data owners, or the age of the data, with the authorization of the Institute, the data controller may implement compensatory measures in the terms of the Regulation for this Law.

Article 19. All responsible parties that process personal data must establish and maintain physical and technical administrative security measures designed to protect personal data from damage, loss, alteration, destruction or unauthorized use, access or processing.

Data controllers will not adopt security measures inferior to those they keep to manage their own information. Moreover, risk involved, potential consequences for the data owners, sensitivity of the data, and technological development will be taken into account.

Article 20. Security breaches occurring at any stage of processing that materially affect the property or moral rights of data owners will be reported immediately by the data controller to the data owner, so that the latter can take appropriate action to defend its rights.

Article 21. The data controller or third parties involved in any stage of personal data processing must maintain confidentiality with respect to such data, and this obligation will continue even after the end of its/their relationship with the data owner or, as the case may be, with the data controller.

CHAPTER III

Rights of Data Owners

Article 22. Any data owner, or, where appropriate, his legal representative, may exercise the rights of access, rectification, cancellation and objection under this Law. The exercise of any of these is not a prerequisite nor does it impede the exercise of another. Personal data must be preserved in such a way as to allow the exercise of these rights without delay.

Article 23. Data owners will have the right to access their personal data held by the data controller as well as to be informed of the privacy notice to which processing is subject.

Article 24. The data owner will have the right to rectify data if it is inaccurate or incomplete.

Article 25. The data owner will at all times have the right to cancel his personal data.

Cancellation of personal data will lead to a blocking period following which the data will be erased. The data controller may retain data exclusively for purposes pertaining to responsibilities arising from processing. The blocking period will be equal to the limitation period for actions arising from the legal relationship governing processing pursuant to applicable law.

Once the data is cancelled, the data owner will be notified.

Where personal data has been transmitted prior to the date of rectification or cancellation and continues to be processed by third parties, the data controller must notify them of the request for rectification or cancellation, so that such third parties also carry it out.

Article 26. The data controller will not be obligated to cancel personal data when:

- I. It relates to the parties of a private or administrative contract or partnership agreement and is necessary for its performance and enforcement;
- II. The law requires that it be processed;
- III. Such action hinders judicial or administrative proceedings relating to tax obligations, investigation and prosecution of crimes, or updating of administrative sanctions;
- IV. It is necessary to protect the legally protected interests of the data owner;
- V. It is necessary to carry out an action in the public interest;
- VI. It is necessary to fulfill an obligation legally undertaken by the data owner, and
- VII. It is subject to processing for medical diagnosis or prevention or health services management, provided such processing is done by a health professional subject to a duty of secrecy.

Article 27. Data owners will, at all times and for any legitimate reason, have the right to object to the processing of their data. Where appropriate, the data controller may not process such data owner's data.

CHAPTER IV Exercise of Rights of Access, Rectification, Cancellation and Objection

Article 28. The data owner or his legal representative may at any time make a request to the data controller for access, rectification, cancellation or objection in relation to the personal data concerning him.

Article 29. The access, rectification, cancellation or objection request must include the following:

- I. The data owner's name and address or other means to notify him of the response to his request;
- II. Documents establishing the identity or, where appropriate, legal representation of the data owner;
- III. A clear and precise description of the personal data with regard to which the data owner seeks to exercise any of the abovementioned rights.
- IV. Any other item or document that facilitates locating the personal data.

Article 30. All data controllers must designate a personal data person or department who will process requests from data owners for the exercise of the rights referred to in this Law. In addition, data controllers will promote protection of personal data within their organizations.

Article 31. In the case of requests for rectification of personal data, the data owner must indicate, in addition to that which is specified in the preceding article of this Law, the changes to be made, and provide documentation supporting the request.

Article 32. The data controller will notify the data owner, within a maximum of twenty days counted from the date of receipt of the request for access, rectification, cancellation or objection, of the determination made, so that, where appropriate, same will become effective within fifteen days from the date on which the notice is provided. For personal data access requests, delivery will be made upon proof of identity of the requesting party or legal representative.

The aforementioned time periods may be extended a single time by a period of equal length, provided that such action is justified by the circumstances of the case.

Article 33. The obligation to provide access to information will be fulfilled when the personal data is made available to the data owner; or, by issuing uncertified copies, electronic documents or any other means established by the data controller in the privacy notice.

In the event that the data owner requests access to data from a person or entity who he presumes is the data controller and said person or entity proves not to be such, it will be sufficient for said person or entity to so indicate to the data owner by any of the means referred to in the preceding paragraph, for the request to be considered properly fulfilled.

Article 34. The data controller may deny access to personal data or refuse the rectification, cancellation or objection with relation thereto in the following cases:

- I. Where the requesting party is not the subject of the personal data, or the legal representative is not duly accredited for such purposes;
- II. Where the requesting party's personal data is not found in the data controller's database;
- III. Where the rights of a third party are adversely affected;
- IV. Where there is any legal impediment, or decision of a competent authority, restricting access to the personal data or not allowing the rectification, cancellation or objection with relation thereto, and
- V. Where the rectification, cancellation or objection has been previously performed.

The refusal referred to in this article may be partial, in which case the data controller will carry out the access, rectification, cancellation or objection requested by the data owner.

In all of the aforementioned cases, the data controller must notify the data owner, or, as appropriate, his legal representative, of its decision and the reason for such decision, within the periods established for such purposes, via the same means by which the request was made, attaching, where appropriate, any relevant evidence.

Article 35. The action of providing personal data will be free, and the data owner must only pay justified expenses of shipping or the cost of copying or providing data in other formats.

This right will be exercised by the data owner free of charge, upon proof of his identity to the data controller. However, if the same person repeats his request within a period of twelve months, costs will not be greater than three days of the General Current Minimum Wage in Mexico City, unless there are material changes to the privacy notice that prompt new queries.

The data owner may file a data protection request due to the response received or lack of response from the data controller, in accordance with the provisions of the following Chapter.

CHAPTER V

Data Transfer

Article 36. Where the data controller intends to transfer personal data to domestic or foreign third parties other than the data processor, it must provide them with the privacy notice and the purposes to which the data owner has limited data processing.

Data processing will be done as agreed in the privacy notice, which shall contain a clause indicating whether or not the data owner agrees to the transfer of his data; moreover, the third party receiver will assume the same obligations as the data controller that has transferred the data.

Article 37. Domestic or international transfers of data may be carried out without the consent of the data owner in the following cases:

- I. Where the transfer is pursuant to a Law or Treaty to which Mexico is party;
- II. Where the transfer is necessary for medical diagnosis or prevention, health care delivery, medical treatment or health services management;
- III. Where the transfer is made to holding companies, subsidiaries or affiliates under common control of the data controller, or to a parent company or any company of the same group as the data controller, operating under the same internal processes and policies;
- IV. Where the transfer is necessary by virtue of a contract executed or to be executed in the interest of the data owner between the data controller and a third party;

- V. Where the transfer is necessary or legally required to safeguard public interest or for the administration of justice;
- VI. Where the transfer is necessary for the recognition, exercise or defense of a right in a judicial proceeding, and
- VII. Where the transfer is necessary to maintain or fulfill a legal relationship between the data controller and the data owner.

Self-regulatory schemes may be translated into codes of ethics or good professional practice, trust seals or other mechanisms, and will contain specific rules or standards enabling harmonization of data processing performed by adherents and facilitation of the exercise of data owners' rights. Notification of such schemes will be made simultaneously to the relevant sectoral authorities and the Institute.

CHAPTER VII

Rights Protection Procedure

Article 45. The procedure will be initiated by request from the data owner or his legal representative, clearly stating the content of his claim and the provisions of this Law deemed violated. The data protection request must be submitted to the Institute within fifteen days from the date on which the response from the data controller is communicated to the data owner.

In the event that the data owner does not receive a response from the data controller, the data protection request may be filed after the deadline for the data controller response has passed. In this case, it will be sufficient for the data owner to accompany its data protection request with the document that proves the date on which he filed the request for access, rectification, cancellation or objection.

The data protection request will also be allowed under the same terms when the data controller does not deliver the requested personal data to the data owner, or delivers it in an incomprehensible form, refuses to make changes or corrections to personal data, or where the data owner is not satisfied with the information delivered since he considers it is incomplete or does not match the information requested.

Upon receipt of the data protection request by the Institute, said request will be sent to the data controller, for said controller to, within fifteen days, issue a response, provide any evidence it deems relevant and make its formal arguments in writing.

The Institute will admit any evidence it deems relevant and introduce it. It may also request any other evidence it deems necessary from the data controller. After introduction of evidence, the Institute will notify the data controller of its right to, if it so considers necessary, present its arguments within five days of notification.

As required under the procedure, the Institute will issue a decision on the data protection request filed, after analyzing the evidence and other elements of proof it deems appropriate, as may be those that arise from the hearing(s) held with the parties.

The Regulations to the Law will establish the manner, conditions and periods under which the rights protection procedure will be carried out.

Article 46. The data protection request may be filed in writing or using the electronic system forms provided by the Institute for such a purpose, and must contain the following information:

- I. The name of the data owner or, where applicable, his legal representative, as well as that of any third party to the request;

- II. The name of the data controller to whom the request for personal data access, rectification, cancellation or objection was sent;
- III. Address to hear and receive notifications;
- IV. The date on which the response from the data controller was received, except where the procedure begins pursuant to the provisions of Article 50;
- V. The acts giving rise to the data protection request, and
- VI. Any other items considered appropriate to bring to the attention of the Institute.

The manner and terms in which the identity of the data owner or, as the case may be, the legal representative, must be documented will be established in the Regulations.

Furthermore, the data protection request will include the request and response being challenged or, where appropriate, any information enabling its identification. Where there has been no response, it will only be necessary to submit the request.

Where the data protection request is filed through non-electronic means, it must include sufficient copies for notification.

Article 47. The decision in the rights protection procedure must be issued within fifty days counted from the date of filing of the data protection request. Where there is good cause, the Plenum of the Institute may extend this deadline a single time for a period of equal length.

Article 48. Where the protection of rights decision is in favor of the data owner, the data controller will be ordered to, within ten days of notification or, where warranted, a longer period as set out in the decision, carry out all action required in accordance with the exercise of the rights subject to protection, and it shall report compliance therewith in writing to the Institute within the following ten days.

Article 49. If the data protection request fails to satisfy any of the requirements specified in Article 46 of this Law, and where the Institute lacks the information to remedy such omissions, the data owner will be instructed, a single time, within twenty working days following the filing of the data protection request, to remedy the omissions within five days. If the instructions are not followed by the deadline, the data protection request will be considered not filed. The instructions will have the effect of interrupting the period allowed for the Institute to issue a decision on the data protection request.

Article 50. The Institute will remedy the deficiencies in the complaint where required, provided it does not alter the original content of the request for personal data access, rectification, cancellation or objection, nor modify the facts or petitions set out in the same or in the data protection request.

Article 51. The decisions of the Institute may:

- I. Dismiss or reject the data protection request as without merit or inadmissible, or
- II. Affirm, reverse or amend the response of the data controller.

Article 52. The data protection request will be rejected as without merit or inadmissible where:

- I. The Institute lacks jurisdiction;
- II. The Institute has already heard the data protection request for the same act and issued a final decision with regard to the same petitioner;
- III. Any petition or legal action filed by the data owner is pending before the competent courts that may have the effect of amending or revoking the act in question;
- IV. The data protection request is offensive or irrational, or
- V. It is filed late.

Article 53. The data protection request will be dismissed where:

- I. The data owner dies;
- II. The data owner expressly withdraws the petition;
- III. After admission of the data protection request, grounds for inadmissibility arise.
- IV. Same becomes moot for any reason.

Article 54. The Institute may, at any time in the procedure, seek conciliation between the data owner and the data controller.

If a conciliation agreement is reached between the two, it will be recorded in writing and will have binding effect. The data protection request will become moot and the Institute will verify fulfillment of the respective agreement.

For the purposes of conciliation referred to herein, the procedure established in the Regulations to this Law will be followed.

Article 55. Where a data protection request is filed upon lack of response by the data controller to a request in the exercise of the rights of access, rectification, cancellation or objection, the Institute will serve notice on said data controller to, within ten days, prove it has responded in a timely manner to the request, or respond to it. If the response satisfies the request, the data protection request will be considered without merit and the Institute must dismiss it.

In this latter case, the Institute will issue its decision based on the content of the original request and the response of the data controller referred to in the preceding paragraph.

If the decision of the Institute referred to in the preceding paragraph determines that the request has merit, the data controller will proceed to fulfill it, at no charge to the data owner, where the data controller must bear all costs generated by the corresponding reproduction.

Article 56. Private parties may file a petition for annulment against decisions issued by the Institute with the Federal Tax and Administrative Court.

Article 57. All decisions of the Institute may be publicly released in public versions, eliminating any references to the data owner which identify him or make him identifiable.

Article 58. Data owners who feel they have suffered harm or damage to their property or rights as a result of a breach of the provisions of this Law by the data controller or data processor, may exercise the rights they deem appropriate for purposes of any applicable indemnity, in the terms of the relevant law.

CHAPTER VIII

Verification Procedure

Article 59. The Institute will verify compliance with this Law and the regulations derived herefrom. Verification may be initiated of its own motion or by petition of an interested party.

Verification of its own motion will be carried out in the event of nonfulfillment of decisions issued in rights protection procedures as referred to in the preceding Chapter, or where the existence of violations of this Law is presumed grounded in law and fact.

Article 60. In the verification procedure, the Institute will have access to all information and documentation it deems necessary, in accordance with the respective decision.

Federal public servants will be obliged to observe confidentiality of the information they have access to as a result of the relevant verification.

The Regulations will describe the form, terms and periods for the procedure referred to in this article.

CHAPTER IX

Penalty Application Procedure

Article 61. If, by virtue of a rights protection procedure or verification procedure carried out by the Institute, the Institute becomes aware of a presumed breach of any of the principles or provisions of this Law, it will initiate the procedure referred to in this Chapter in order to determine the appropriate penalty.

Article 62. The penalty application procedure will begin with notice sent by the Institute to the alleged offender with regard to the facts that originated the procedure and will grant a period of fifteen days to present evidence and state formal arguments in writing. Where no evidence is presented, the Institute will arrive at a decision through the evidence at its disposal.

The Institute will admit evidence it deems relevant and introduce it. In addition, it may request any other evidence it deems necessary from the alleged offender. After introduction of evidence, the Institute will notify the alleged offender of its right to, if it so considers necessary, present its arguments within five days of notification.

The Institute, after analyzing the evidence and other elements of proof it deems relevant, will issue a final decision within fifty days after the date on which it initiated the penalty procedure. Notice of this decision must be given to the parties.

Where there is good cause, the Plenum of the Institute may extend this deadline a single time for a period of equal length.

The Regulations will describe the form, terms and periods for the penalty application procedure, including presentation of evidence and arguments, hearings and end of proceedings.
